25 YEARS SUCCESSFUL MERCHANDISING.

1887-1912.

The Robinson Co., Limited, Celebrate their 25th Anniversary
on May 21st, 22nd, and 23rd.

A few months ago the attention of the leading Canadian Dry Goods
Journal, "The Dry Goods Review,"
was drawn to the phenomenal success
which had been attained by six dry goods concerns in different parts of the Dominion all under the "Robinson" name, but in no way connected. They sent out men especially to write up these stores, and the first one on the list was our own well-known firm,
"The Robinson Co., Limited."

Just a few facts from this review will not be amiss. In 1887 the partners, J. S. Robinson, J. W. Robinson, and W. J. Gurren bought out The Downey Co. This partnership continued till 1891 when W. J. Gurren went out. In 1895 J. S. Robinson withdrew and from 1895 until 1906 the business was conducted by J. W.
Robinson under the name The Robinson Co. In 1906 a joint stock company was formed under the same name with J. W. Robinson as President and Manager, W. J. Campbell as Vice President and J. E. Robinson as Secretary.

The store has a frontage of sixty-
six feet with display windows sixty feet long and six feet wide. There are three flats and a basement, with a telephone service on each floor. The store has exceptionally fine window space, of dimensions that are most generally found in larger cities, and they are always used to best advantage. Last year for example, in competition with all America these windows were awarded first prize in a Ladies Home Journal competition.
This is the first time this prize has ever come to Canada.

The staff at present numbers sixty-five people, eight of whom have been
with the firm more than ten years,
and twelve more than five years.

This anniversary celebration will be in keeping with the past record of this firm. There will be music,
elaborate decorations, and a cup of tea
and a piece of their birthday cake for
all. Not the least part of it all will be the special price attractions.

The heads of the departments are as follows: Carpets, Canfield Shorey;
Women's Ready-to-Wear, Miss Edna

LIBERALS SWEEP QUEBEC.

Liberalism in Quebec was never more virile and alive than it is to-day. In spite of a bitter campaign in which Nationalists and Conservatives were aided by the Ultramontanians and by ample funds and Ministerial campaigners from the Federal forces, the Government of Sir Lomer Gouin was returned to power to-day with an increased majority. His policy in regard to better educational facilities, in regard to good roads, in behalf of agriculture, colonization and every other progressive measure was endorsed by the electorate of the Province, and he goes back to office stronger than ever.

In the last House of seventy-four members the Opposition held sixteen seats, while in the new House of eighty-one they hold the same number. Two counties—namely, Gaspé and Magdalen Islands—hold their elections later, but they are sure to go with the Government. Sir Lomer is elected in the two ridings of Portneuf and St. John's. In the former he was re-elected by over 1,200 majority. With the exception of Hon. Mr. Caron, all of his Cabinet Ministers were re-elected, many of them with increased majorities. Mr. Caron is reported defeated by two votes.

NEW AND PROMINENT LIBERALS

A number of new and prominent Liberals, such as Mr. E. A. Robert, President of the Montreal Tramways Company; Mr. Godfroy Langlois, champion of better educational methods, and many others are elected. Mr. Robert redeemed Beauharnois, which was previously held by the Conservatives.

CONSERVATIVES HARD HIT.

Mr. L. J. Marchal, K. C., a prominent Conservative lawyer of Montreal, who was talked of as likely to be soon taken into the Federal Cabinet, was defeated in Chambly. Armand Lavergne, Nationalist leader, was defeated in Montmorency, but managed to squeeze through in Montmagny. Mr. Teller, Conservative leader, barely escaped, and Mr. Prevost bit the dust in L'Assomption, but carried Terrebonne by a reduced majority.

The day was an overwhelming triumph for the cause of Liberalism. It proves that the Liberal party and Liberal ideals are not dead, but, on the other hand, are in an exceedingly healthy condition.

A special number of the "Canada Gazette" was issued Tuesday proclaiming the Act extending the boundaries of Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec to go into effect on Wednesday, May 15th. The order-in-council was passed by the Cabinet last week and signed by the Governor-General on Saturday.

Author of "The Verdict of the Heart," "A Heritage of Hate," "Nell of Shorne Mills," "Paid For," "A Modern Juliet," Etc.

"Oh, Mr. Harcourt!" she gasped. But Mr. Harcourt sniffed and hurried off; perhaps he was unaccustomed to gratitude.

Polly, when she got home that night, kissed Nina very quietly.

"You know you are giving me the chance of my life, dear?" she said, gravely. "But, oh, if I miss it I shall spoil your play!"

"You won't miss it, and you couldn't spoil my play if you tried," said Nina, tenderly. "I mean that you will play the part splendidly."

"If you'll only help me I'll—I'll do my best," faltered Polly.

They went over it there and then, and kept at it until the dawn peeped in at the window at two pale-faced, excited girls; so that at the next rehearsal Polly was not only perfect in her words but in her business. The stage manager did not throw up his arms in delighted satisfaction—they only do this in novels—but he grunted and nodded at her, and Polly thrilled with pride and hope.

Nina suffered a great deal during the rehearsals because she could not be present. ("You couldn't cut off that beautiful hair of yours and come down to the theatre in a blue serge suit and a limp?" suggested Polly.) But the little play was well cast, and the stage manager knew his business.

Polly reported every day, reported fully, and Nina gave a hint or two which Polly—heaven knows how—managed to convey to the other actors.

Presently Polly brought her an advertisement announcing the play, and Nina, when she was alone, bent over it with a strange mixture of ecstasy and sadness; for even the production of this her first effort could not bring her perfect happiness. The fly is still in every piece of amber which we mortals carve for ourselves.

But at the last rehearsal Polly got permission for "Mr. Wood's" sister to be present; and Nina, hot and cold by turns, watched it from the stage. It sent her down to the lowest depths of despair; because even a last rehearsal is a hopeless and appalling thing.

"I didn't think it could be quite so stupid," she said, meaning the play. "The poor people won't be able to sit it out. Oh, Polly, I'm so sorry for all the trouble I've given you and everybody else concerned! Do you think Mr. Harcourt would let me withdraw it?"

"I don't know; but I'll ask him if you like. You silly, it's splendid, and they all know it. Miss Tracey was tired, and I don't mean to give myself away till the night. It will go with a rush, you see. And, oh, I'm sure, we'll have a supper at the Cri—and a bottle of champagne—a big one!"

smile on his painted lips. But Nina had no eyes for him. She knew the woman in a moment—at the first glance.

It was the original of the portrait in Vane Manning's coat; it was the woman he loved, the woman whose name he had breathed as Nina had leant over him that night in the men's hut. It was Judith!

As Judith Orme sank into her chair, and, dropping the opera-cloak from her white shoulders, looked round the house with a languid and yet serene gaze, Nina felt as if the sapphire eyes were fixed on her, and her heart seemed to cease beating. Her breath came in painful gasps. She tried to look at the stage again, but her eyes, as if magnetized, wandered back to the exquisite face, the exquisite grace of the woman.

The young-old man went out of the box, and presently another, a younger man, entered. He was dark, almost sallow, with brilliant black eyes and thin lips. Both eyes and lips seemed restless as he bent over Judith's chair, and Nina fancied that she could almost see his hand tremble as it rested on the chair-back.

"Oh, are you here?" said Judith, with a slight uplifting of the beautiful brows, a curve on the perfect lips.

"Yes," he said in a low voice with the thrill in it which passion alone can give—the passion that burns like the smouldering fire of a volcano, the fire that, though it seems so still, so innocent, may burst into a death-dealing flame at any moment. "Yes; you said you were coming, and—I am here."

She smiled with the woman's tolerance for the love she does not desire.

"You may stay," she said. "My father—well, he may look in for a moment before the musical farce is over. Are you alone? Is"—she paused an imperceptible instant—"is Lord Manning here?"

The question was put in the most casual way, but a cloud descended on the sallow face and the lids drooped over the brilliant eyes.

"Vane is here, or will be here, I think," he replied. "I came early. I wanted to see—this new piece."

"Yes?" she said. "It is rather good, is it not? The people are laughing a great deal."

"But not the piece alone," he went on in a lower voice. "You said you were coming early, you remember."

"Did I?" with a smile, "I forget."

"Ah, yes, but I do not!" he said, not in the tone with which such compliments are paid, but a little hoarsely, with a twitch of the thin lips, a restless movement of the white hands so near her gleaming shoulder. "I never forget, never lose the chance of being near you, you know."

"Hush!" she whispered with her voice of subtle music. "You must"

cima, we'll—well, we'll have a supper at the Cri—and a bottle of champagne—a big one!"

The night arrived. Polly wanted Decima to have a box, but Nina said she preferred her old seat behind the pillar in the upper circle.

"No one will see me, and if it's a failure—as it will be—I can slip out and drown myself quietly and without any fuss."

"Better hang yourself—round my neck," said Polly.

Nina crept to her place. One or two persons were already seated, and they glanced curiously at the lovely girl with the white face and anxious eyes; but she drew well behind her pillar and tried to possess her soul in patience.

A first night is a bad time for the manager and the actors—to say nothing of the audience—but it is worse for the author, because he, poor wretch, can only look on and endure in inaction. Nina thought the overture would never end, the curtain never go up; but it ascended at last, and the play began to a crammed pit and gallery, an upper circle fairly well filled and a sprinkling in the dress circle and stalls.

For a moment or two the scene swam before Nina's eyes, and she could not see the actors nor hear their voices; but presently sight and hearing came back to her, and, incredible as it may seem, she almost forgot her authorship in her interest in the play. Were these sparkling words hers? Was it she who wrote the lines that, spoken by Miss Tracey, brought the tears very near her, Nina's, eyes? Did she invent the business which in Polly's clever hands caused the theatre to ring with laughter? Oh, how sweet, how sweet was the sound of that laughter in Nina's ears! The color stole to her face, her eyes grew bright. Was her poor little play going to be a success—really a success?

She began to glance round the theatre—only glance—for she could scarcely take her eyes from the play. What did these gentlemen in the stalls, the critics, think of it? She saw one whom she supposed belonged to the awful tribe laugh and nod to a fellow member. Was he really satisfied?

The people were laughing, the play was going smoothly and "strong." Her heart beat with almost painful rapidity, but still fearfully, for your author is a modest and a timid covey. How splendidly Miss Tracey played! And Polly—oh, you dear, sweet girl, to make them laugh every time you open your lips! How, how do you do it?

Her eyes wandered from the stalls to the boxes and scanned the faces of the few occupants with eager, anxious inquiry. Then suddenly she forgot her anxiety, the players, the play itself, and her face grew pale and her eyes fixed as she gazed spell-bound at the box nearest the stage on the first tier.

A lady and gentleman had entered. A lovely woman with auburn hair with golden lights in it, with sapphire eyes of wondrous hue, with a face of clear ivory, and lips on which men might swear away their lives, their honor, their souls. The man was young-old, beautifully dressed, with an orchid in the silk facing of his irreproachable coat, and a fixed hands so near her gleaming shoulder, "I never forget, never lose the chance of being near you, you know."

"Hush!" she whispered with her voice of subtle music. "You must listen to the play—and let me do so."

There was a pause, during which he looked, not at the stage, but at her—looked with the passion smouldering in his eyes, beating in the sal-low cheeks which had grown somewhat sunken, breathing from the set lips—and she, leaning back and feeling his gaze, seemed so serenely, exquisitely calm and emotionless that one would have said that no passion could have power to touch her even with the ends of its burning fingers.

But suddenly, though her eyes did not move, her bosom rose and fell quickly. She had heard a step in the corridor—Vane entered the box.

She did not turn her head, but despite herself, her marvelous power of self-control, the color dyed her face and her eyes shone.

Julian saw the momentary change, the flash of emotion that betrayed her, and his face went pallid, his lips grew straight and there flashed into his now sombre eyes a gleam of hate—the hate which, joined with jealousy, is of all kinds the most malignant, the most merciless.

Vane did not come forward, but, with a bow and a smile, dropped into a chair behind the curtain, so that he was unseen by Nina, whose eyes were still turned to the beautiful woman, now languidly fanning herself, with a new touch of color in her face, a new light in her eyes.

So they sat, in silence now, for Vane was one of those persons who, oddly enough, in these days when most well-bred people appear to regard the theatre as a place for conversation, did not talk while the curtain was up. He leant back and looked on at the play with at first an absent air, but presently an interest awakened in spite of himself. She listened—to Vane's regular breathing; and Julian sat with his arms folded, his lids lowered, his eyes fixed on the hem of the dress of the woman he had grown to love with a passion that absorbed, devoured him, and left him no rest for body or soul. And nothing about him moved but the tick, tick of the nerve in his hollow cheek.

As the play drew to an end the interest, the laughter of the audience increased, and when the curtain fell there was one of those outbursts of applause which managers, actors, authors, love to hear.

"The Betrothed" was a genuine, unmistakable success.

The applause seemed to deafen Nina. She watched the actors and actresses cross before the curtain, and she longed to clap her hands—for, oh, how grateful she was to them!—but she felt incapable of movement. Her heart beat so wildly that she did not at first hear the cries of "Author! Author! Author!" but as they grew louder and more insistent she began to tremble, and, clutching her opera-cloak round her, she rose and fled; so that when Mr. Harcourt came forward, with his hand on his heart, and announced that the author was not in the theatre, he, marvelous to relate, spoke the truth.

Vane moved forward and stood by Judith's chair.

"A pretty play," he said, "and a clever one. I am sorry I did not see it all."

She swept her magnificent dress from the chair beside her, but he did not accept the invitation. He glanced wearily, listlessly, round the house, then, as if he remembered why, he had come to the box, he said:

"But you don't care for him eh?
What fancies you women get! I should have thought he would have

"You see nothing of the kind," reported Lady Letchford from her dressing room. "Perhaps you mean that we are civil to each other—we couldn't quarrel or cut each other in another man's house."

"Oh, that's all right," said Sir
Charles. "By the way, do you notice
how smitten Julian Shore is?"

"Of course I do," said Lady Letchford. "I am not blind. But I

casually:

"She is an old servant of mine.
Her name is Deborah. I'm sorry she

"Oh, that's all right," said Sir
Chandos, but grudgingly. "But you must have a queer fancy. If she be-

"I'm sure you would," said Julian
so smoothly that there was a gener-

"The fact is," said Vane, with a nod and a smile at Julian, "no one would stand the awful smells of Julian's den."

"You go in for chemistry, I under-most interesting study. I used to dabble in it, but quite unprofessionally. What branch have you taken

Julian shrugged his shoulders, the slight shrug which hinted at his Spanish blood. "Oh, well," he replied, modestly, "I am trying to find a new color."

"Really! How interesting! How

young girl. "I hope it will be a

They were in time for dinner after
all. It was as usual a merry meal,
for the men had had a good day,
and the women were rejoiced to have them back. Vane alone was rather silent, as usual, but from his place
at the bottom of the table, facing Lady Fanworthy, he smiled whenever the conversation required a smile
from him, and he spoke now and again to Lady Lisle who, with her husband, was dining at the Hall
that night, and who sat at his right. A little further down the table was Judith Orme, the most beautiful and the best dressed woman present. Lord Lisle was next her and she seemed to be listening with interest to his detailed account of the day's sport; but every now and then her eyes wandered to the grave face at the bottom of the table; and every time they so wandered, Julian, who sat opposite her,
noted the glance, though his soft voice
never hesitated and his pleasant smile never faltered. He seemed scarcely to look at her, but not a movement, not a word of hers escaped
him, though he appeared engrossed
with the young girl whom he had taken in, and who was chatting with the volubility of nineteen.

The talk ran its course in the light, desultory manner of table-talk,
and Lady Fanworthy, in her black silk and priceless lace, leant back with the serenity of the hostess when her dinner is going well, and looked thoughtfully at Vane with the expression in her keen eyes which Lady Letchford had noticed.

Presently Sir Chandos Orme's thin
falsetto voice was heard in a moment
of silence.

"Dropped in at the Momus last night," he said; he had run up to Town to interview his beauty-doctor
the day before. "They're going well and strong. Was in time for that first piece; deuced clever! Harcourt I went behind to—er—see a man I know
—told me that he's commissioned the author to write a comedy; and Harcourt expects a big success with it."

"Quite a new man, and very young,
isn't he?" said Julian.

"Quite a boy. His name's Herbert Wood," replied Sir Chandos, signing to France to fill his glass—for the fourth time—"and a cripple. Harcourt hasn't seen him yet. He's a friend of the Polly Bainford who's made such a hit in the first piece;
and Harcourt communicates with him
through her."

"Quite mysterious and—stagey," murmured Judith Orme. "You remember the piece, Lord Lesborough?"

"Yes, quite well, what I saw of it," said Vane. "I should think the author would write a very good comedy. We must all go and see it."

"I say, Shore," said Sir Chandos
with the flickering of the eyelids and the twitching of the lips which always followed his fourth glass of champagne, "I had a regular fright
just now."

Julian raised his eyes. "Metaphorically speaking, of course," he said.
"You were in the Seventy-second,
Sir Chandos?"

Sir Chandos showed his perfectly constructed teeth.

"By gad, yes; we weren't easily frightened. But I give you my word
I was—well, rather startled. I was coming down from my room the short way—a little late"—he smiled and bowed to Lady Fanworthy—"and I

clever you must be!" exclaimed the
young girl. "I hope it will be a nice color, one that will suit
ladies."

"Any color I am fortunate enough
to discover will possess that virtue," he retorted with a slight bow.

"One of these days Julian will awake to find himself famous," said Vane; "and in quite a new line for the Mannersings. I don't think any of them has come out strong as a scientist."

"I should so like to see your—laboratory; is that the right name?"
said the young girl.

"Julian smiled at her indulgently.
"So you shall; whenever you please;
though there is very little to see."

"Take my advice, Miss Limming-
ton, and—don't," said Vane.
"You'll see nothing but pots and pans in a variety of glass and iron;
and you will be assailed by a smell
that will haunt you more than any ghost you have at the Grange."

"Lord Lesborough's advice is good, I assure you," said Julian
with a charming frankness and modesty.

Lady Fanworthy, who had been listening to the conversation with a non-committal smile and drooped
lids, looked up and around the table,
gave the sign which every woman at once sees, and no man ever notices,
and the ladies rose and followed her
to the drawing-room.

Vane gathered the men round him
and sent about the claret-jug and cradled port, and set an example by lighting his old briar—the briar
which he had smoked on the Fairy Isle. The conversation promptly took a sporting direction, and Vane
bore his share of it; but every now and then he became preoccupied and absent-minded, and presently he said:

"Won't any one take any more wine? Orme?"

Prominent physicians and some of the best medical authorities endorse these ingredients as being the very best known remedies for ailments and weaknesses peculiar to women.

MRS. COFFEY.

This is what MRS. GENETTI E. COFFEY, of Longstreet, Ky., says: "I feel it my duty to write and tell you what your medicines have done for me. I was a great sufferer for six years from a trouble peculiar to women, but I am thankful to say, after taking four bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' I am not bothered with that dreadful disease any more. I feel like a new woman. When I first wrote you for advice I only weighed 115 pounds—now I weigh 135.

"I thank you very much for your kindness. You have been as a father to me in advising me what to do, so may God bless you in every effort you put forth for good.

"I hope this testimonial will be the means of some poor suffering woman seeking health."

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, newly revised up-to-date edition, answers hosts of delicate questions about which every woman, single or married ought to know.

Serious Shocks.

A comparison of the recorded dates of earthquakes seems to show that they have occurred most frequently in the winter half of the year. Three-fifths of those chronicled in France took place during the winter months, and the proportion seems more marked in Switzerland, while the same law has been observed with regard to earthquakes in Britain. The most severe of the 200 earthquakes recorded in England were those at Lincoln in 1142, at Glastonbury in 1274, when the original abbey was destroyed; and the shocks of 1580, which damaged Old St. Paul's and the Temple Church, and of 1750, which frightened to death the poetaster, Aaron Hill. Of recent years the most serious English earthquake was that of 1884, which did considerable damage throughout East Essex, but luckily caused no loss of life.

Topics of the Household.

A dish that retains the odor of cooked foods such as onion or cabbage can be cleansed by boiling a strong solution of soda in it.

To forestall any danger of cracking a cut glass dish on which ice cream is to be served rinse the dish in cold water and then gradually chill it with ice water before putting the cream on it.

One of the everyday but very useful facts given out in one of the teachers' colleges of New York city was this: If the silver which has become tarnished is put into an aluminium dish and boiling water is turned over it an electric current will be set up and the grime will drop off as if by magic. The current may be increased by adding to the hot water a tablespoonful of salt. The silver, it was said, will require no rubbing.

Gasoline in which a little salt has been dissolved will, it is said, take stains from delicate fabrics without leaving a ring.

Old tea and coffee stains that have resisted other treatment will come out, it is said, if they are wet with cold water, covered with glycerin, left for about three hours and then washed in cold water and soap. A second application of the glycerin is sometimes necessary.

LOANS ON WORD OF HONOR.

Unique French Society Aids Many and Suffers Little Loss.

The Loan of Honor society is one of the most peculiar organizations in France, according to United States Consul Carl Bailey Hurst, at Lyon. It is an association of philanthropists established a few years ago for the purpose of lending money to clerks, operatives and others in pecuniary distress.

"The sole obligation on the part of the borrowers," said Mr. Hurst, "is to promise on their word of honor to return within a certain time the amount loaned. The success of the undertaking from a charitable point of view has been striking. During the last fiscal year money was lent to 384 persons, among whom there were 51 clerks, 17 small trades people, 12 railroad employees, 9 teachers and mill hands, mechanics, pharmacists, typesetters, students, tailors and carpenters. Of those aided sixty-eight were women, nearly all occupying humble positions.

"The chief causes that brought about the requests for loans were: Sickness, 119 cases; lack of work, 83 cases; debts, 84 cases; starting house-keeping, 27 cases, and in smaller number redeeming pawn tickets, etc. All those granted loans were married people, with the exception of twenty-seven, although sixty-four couples were childless. When a loan is solicited a question blank is usually given to the petitioner asking for information that will enable the society to decide whether money can be judiciously advanced. Investigation is made as to the merits of each seemingly favorable case after the question sheets have been returned.

"Naturally the sums lent are not large, ranging between $6 and $60. Most of the loans have been paid back either fully or in part, and the society has not had to put down more than $200 to profit and loss. The society's receipts are derived from the dues of members, an annual bazaar, small subventions by the city and departmental governments and from occasional private donations.

"Its proved practical usefulness in an untried field tends to strengthen the presumption that the work of the society, especially among those holding minor posts in commerce and trade, will be of lasting benefit in teaching young clerks and others the value of unwritten obligations in business dealings."

COMING FROM THEIR TOMB.

The Official Standards of Weights and Measures in England.

In April of this year a ceremony is due to be performed in London which occurs only at intervals of twenty years. This is the comparison of the standards of weights and measures.

The official standards in use at the office of weights and measures are compared with the original standard yard measure and pound weight, which repose in the wall of one of the inner staircases of the house of commons.

The hole in the wall where the two standards are kept is rather like a small tomb, and it can only be opened by actually tearing down the wall.

"The Only Thing That Will Relieve Neuralgia."

The piercing pains of Neuralgia, which often follows a bad cold or La Grippe, are frequently almost unbearable and few medicines afford any relief to the sufferer.

"I am a rural mail carrier and have been a user of the Dr. Miles medicines for years.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills can't be beaten. They are the only thing I have found that will relieve my neuralgia and I have tried most everything, besides medicine from the doctor. I am willing to tell anyone what the Anti-Pain Pills did for me."

CHARLES HILDERBRANDT,
Box 205 Woodville, Ohio

If you, like Mr. Hilderbrandt, "have tried most everything" in vain, why not do as he did, fight your aches and pains with Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. Let the pills bear the brunt of the battle. No matter how stubborn the contest, they will come out victorious.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills stand on their record, which is a long list of cures extending back a generation.

Vancouver Province — An Ontario breeder has initiated a new industry which is called "progressive pork." He is shipping hogs from his farm to the prairies where they are fattened on frozen wheat and then shipped to the coast. If the wheat will not come to the porkers the porkers will go to the wheat.

Ottawa Citizen — In this country it may some day dawn on the consumer that the remedy for continued increase of food prices is in his own hands, and that it is an individual municipal problem that must be solved in a common-sense way unless the public is to be continually at the mercy of the ever-increasing "bread line."

Montreal Witness — In a few ways do the English people so plainly and pleasingly show the sincerity of their regard for Canada and their desire to cement the Empire together as in the self-sacrificing way in which they elect almost any wandering Canadian politician who covets the honor of a seat in the Imperial Parliament.

Montreal Gazette — There are some ten thousand militiamen called out for service during the Fenian raids of 1866, 1870 and 1871. Some $17,000 applications for financial recompense on grounds of service have already been received by the Department of Militia; and the end apparently is not yet. This must be a great land for growing veterans.

St. John Telegraph and Sun — Much water was poured into the pump last summer, and Mr. Borden is now preparing for it to flow forth in fructifying streams. It will flow into sandy soil and be quickly absorbed, and no manufacturer will cry, "It is enough!" Mr. Borden will pay his debt to the interests, more millionaires will be created to take the place of some that may shortly retire from his Cabinet, and more private fortunes will be created by the stream when the pump gets started; but the country will hardly be enriched through the process.

Hamilton Spectator — The grain-growers of the west for many years have demanded the Hudson Bay Railway, and nothing but its absolute failure will convince them that it is not feasible. We must spend sixty million dollars or more on a railway which may possibly be of service for local traffic, or such traffic as may arise between Port Nelson and some port at the southern end of James Bay leading to older Canada, but which the best authorities agree may never render a particle service as an outlet to Europe. Pleasing the west "comes high, but the politicians must do it.

The hole in the wall where the two standards are kept is rather like a small tomb, and it can only be opened by actually tearing down the wall.

The yard measure is a bronze bar thirty-eight inches long, on which thirty-six divisions of one inch — i. e., a yard — have been marked off. The standard pound is of platinum, and, despite its weight and the fact that the metal of which it consists is worth $200, in size it is no more than a cubic inch.

No variations were detected when the standards were last compared in April, 1892, and the precious standards were then walled up once more in their dark little tomb, where for twenty years they have been undisturbed.

Baltimore and Conventions.

Down to the period of the war between the states Baltimore was a favorite place for national conventions. Candidates for president nominated there by all parties, beginning with 1832, include Andrew Jackson, Henry Clay, Martin Van Buren, James K. Polk, John Tyler, Zachary Taylor, Lewis Cass, Franklin Pierce, General Scott, Stephen A. Douglas, John C. Breckinridge, John Bell and Abraham Lincoln (in 1864).

New York's Wealth.

According to the tabulation figures in the tax books for 1912 real estate in New York is assessed at $7,525,474,063. Estimating the realty which is exempt from taxation at $2,500,000,000, the value of all real estate in the five boroughs approximates $10,000,000,000. The assessed valuation of taxable property in New York has been raised in the last fourteen years, or since consolidation, from $2,463,135,687. — New York American.

The inhabitants of Fontainebleau are protesting against some of the uses to which the picturesque forest, with its huge volcanic boulders, is being put by some of the cinematographic companies. EMBARRASSING.

But Presumably the Young Man Recovered His Candy.

Seated in the third row of the stalls, the young couple were enjoying themselves immensely. The newness of the young lady's clothes, the devotion of her attendant man and the huge box of chocolates they were sharing suggested that they were honeymooners.

The first act of the play had just got well under way when a stout, elderly and pompous lady swept rustlingly to her seat right in front of the bride.

At first the young couple paid no attention to her; then—

"Excuse me, madam," the bridegroom began deferentially, "but"—

The lady addressed swung slowly round and eyed him coldly. Even in the darkened theater he felt the chill of her glance. But, undeterred, he began again. This time he got a reply.

"Kindly explain why you persist in annoying me," said the stout lady haughtily. "My seat does not obscure your view of the stage, does it?"

"Not at all, madam; but, all the same, I must ask you to move. You're"—

But she would not listen.

"I am not interfering with you in any way, so please mind your own business!"

But the young husband was desperate, although his lips were trembling with laughter.

"Pardon me, madam," he persisted, "but you are sitting on an open box of chocolates!"—London Answers.

Fine the Preacher.

"Would you," inquires the Greenwood Journal, "give the deaf man a verdict, if you were on the jury, who is suing for damages because he alleges that he is paying for preaching he can't hear?"

Personally we'd be inclined to render a verdict after the fashion of the immortal Paddy Divver. As the story goes, a loyal henchman of the clan named Danny was arrested for an enthusiastic and successful assault upon an innocent third party. It was just before election, and Danny sent for his leader. The leader heard Danny's story and went to see Paddy Divver.

"Paddy," he said, "I wish you'd be light on Danny. He's a good fellow and can help us a lot in the election."

"All right," said Paddy: "I'll give him thirty days!"

"But that will keep him in jail over the election!" the leader protested.

"Rats!" said Paddy. "I don't mean Danny. I mean the plaintiff!"—New York Evening Sun.

NATURAL LACE.

Marvelous Tree of Jamaica Whose Bark Is Used For Garments.

Many instances of the marvelous in nature are supplied by the vegetable kingdom. Though our knowledge of the mysteries of plant life are limited, we have abundant evidence that many plants are as wonderful in their way as certain members of the animal kingdom. Take, for instance, that specimen of a little known tree whose inner bark is a very perfect example of fine lace, which seems to be valued by native races on the island of Jamaica where it grows. Nowhere else on earth has this singular tree been found, and even in Jamaica its growth is confined to a small part of the island. It was discovered and permanently introduced to the botanical gardens of England and Europe as early as 1844. In fact, a half century earlier, in 1793, a young lace-bark tree was brought to the Kew Gardens of England by Rear Admiral William Bligh, but it did not live long in its new home.

The inner bark of this singular tree consists of reticulated fiber in layers, one for each year of its life, and when

...by near Admiral William Bligh, but it did not live long in its new home.

The inner bark of this singular tree
consists of reticulated fiber in layers,
one for each year of its life, and when properly prepared this material exactly resembles well made lace. The ladies of Jamaica are externally dexterous in making caps, ruffles, nets, bonnets, veils and complete suits of lace with it. It bears washing extremely well, with common soap, and acquires a degree of whiteness equal
to that of the best manufactured lace.
The wild negroes have made apparel
with it of a very durable nature, but the common use to which it is applied is rope making. The Spaniards are said to have worked it into very strong ropes, and the Indians employ it in a variety of different fabrics.

The trees grow to a height of 20 to 30
feet and present a beautiful sight
when in blossom. The flowers closely resemble those of the lily-of-the-valley,
while the leaves are of good size and glossy, forming a good setting for the pure white blossoms which grow in spikes.

Where Peter Worked.

On the wall of a barn in the Foreign Cattle Market at Deptford on the Thames is a tablet in Russian and English to the memory of Peter the Great of Russia, put up by the Russian agriculturists on their visit to Great Britain. The original shed in which he worked has long since disappeared, with its rough tablet recording that:

"HERE WORKED
As a Ship Carpenter
PETER
Czar of all the Russias
Afterwards
PETER THE GREAT
1698."

This period spent in acquiring practical knowledge in a foreign country
is indicative of the energy and determination which played so great a part in this interesting character — interesting especially when viewed in conjunction with its setting. Wild and undisciplined as a boy, and with the savagery of a race then a full century
behind its time, he yet had the breadth
of concept and the far-seeing determination to lift his country out of its frozen sleep and set it on the road to civilization. Although his methods were sometimes drastic, savoring of that very absence of civilization
which he desired to remedy, he achieved
his purpose.

On motion of Mr. Wilson, seconded by Mr. Herrington, the report was ordered filed.

The President then read his annual report as follows:

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The Lennox and Addington Historical Society is now five years old and I believe we may safely say that it has prospered. Starting with nothing, there has been collected material which each year makes more valuable, from an historical point of view, and which will be invaluable to those who wish to study the history of this district.

ADDITIONS TO THE COLLECTION.

This last year has been one of the best of the five. Thirty-six separate donations have increased our collections in a noteworthy manner. We seem to have been favored particularly with photographs, this being probably due to the interest created by the local paper given at one of meetings which was illustrated by eighty-four lantern slide reproductions of some of the photographs already in the collection. The contributions from Mrs. Burritt, Mr. John Wallace, Mr. Herbert Daly, Mr. F. S. Richardson, and his worship Mayor Wm. T. Waller were of particular interest. We have added excellent pictures of his Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, Mr. Chas. Canniff James, Rev. Frederick T. Dobb, the Hon. John Stevenson, Sir John A. Macdonald, and Sir Edmund Walker to our collection of framed portraits, most of them having a signature attached. That of Sir Edmund Walker was beautifully framed when it arrived.

Mr. Wm. E. Carscadden, of Tamworth, and Mr. Wm. E. Spencer, of Roblin, have each collected and sent to the Society a large number of ford, Ontario, on June 1st, 2nd and 3rd, 1911, and I attended the sessions, reading our annual report. The people of Brantford were particularly cordial in their welcome and on the third day all the delegates were given an interesting visit to the Indian reservation, which adjoins the city. Major Gordon J. Smith, Superintendent of the Indians, took charge of the party and a most instructive day was spent. Luncheon was served by Six Nations' Indians and Mr. David Williams of Collingwood, President of the Society, was made an honorary chief, being initiated in full form.

When the question of a meeting place for 1912 was considered, I extended an invitation to the Society to hold it at Napanee. As you all know that invitation was accepted and the meetings will be held here on June 5, 6 and 7th next. The preparation of a program has been progressing most auspiciously, and I believe we shall be able to present one of the best ever offered to the Society. Everyone has taken a great interest in this work and the manner in which our citizens have come forward and offered to do everything within their power shows that we need have no fears but that a most cordial welcome will be given to our visitors. This meeting, bringing together, as it does, the leading historians from all parts of the Province and some from our neighboring Republic, will be the first big celebration held in Canada to commemorate the hundredth anniversary of the War of 1812 and we should feel a high degree of pride in having been given the opportunity to act as hosts on the occasion.

AMERICAN HISTORICAL ASSOCIATION ANNUAL

In December I attended the Annual Meeting of the American Historical Association which was held at Buffalo, N. Y. The meetings were of particular interest to all Canadians and there were papers by or discussions led by no less than nine well known Canadian historians.

THE FUTURE.

The record which our own Society has made during the first five years of its existence, the keen interest which the people throughout the County now take in the work as evinced by the almost daily enquiries and offers to add something to the collection, the recognition which we have received from the historians of the Province, the willingness with which the University men accept our invitations to come here and lecture, and the individual aid which is always gladly given by the citizens of Napanee when required, all make me feel that a splendid future is assured for this organization. We have much to work for.

At present one of our members is spending considerable time on the preparation of a history of the United Counties and when it is complete, I feel sure it will be equal, if not superior, to any County history yet written in the Province. A gentleman who lives in Napanee has promised to give his entire collection of pamphlets, one that I know contains many valuable and rare Ontario reports. And many others have spoken to me of articles of interest which will eventually come to us. It is true our finances are not in a particularly flourishing condition but the Ontario Government provides us a grant of $100.00 each year with the understanding that the greater part of it shall be used for printing. I am hoping that some of our citizens will start an endowment fund, one held in trust in perpetuity, the income of which can at all times be used for the advancement of the work of the Society. Meantime London, May 13.—Lady Tupper, wife of Sir Charles Tupper, died Saturday at Bexleyheath, Kent. Sir Charles is an ex-prime minister of Canada, and he filled two terms as high commissioner for Canada in London. The then Dr. and Mrs. Tupper were married on October 8th, 1846. The bride was Frances Amelia Morse, daughter of the late Hibbert Morse, of Amherst, Cumberland county, Nova Scotia. Sir Charles Tupper is still living, though some time ago his condition was critical. One son is Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper, at one time a dominion cabinet minister. The eldest son, James Stewart Tupper, K. C., of Winnipeg, is heir to the baronetcy.

Edmund Walker was beautifully framed when it arrived.

Mr. Wm. E. Carscadden, of Tamworth, and Mr. Wm. E. Spencer, of Roblin, have each collected and sent to the Society a large number of interesting papers and documents and Mr. Walter E. Clarke, of Violet, has added very materially to his collection of Indian relics, which he placed in our care about three years ago.

Mr. Frederick Burrows, Mr. G. F. Ruttan and Mr. Morley Wilson have given a number of documents and Prof. A. E. Lang of Victoria College, Toronto, has sent us some valuable material telling of the early amusements of this County. The papers given by Mr. Ruttan include many early maps and several hundred letters written by prominent Canadians in the years preceding Confederation.

Mrs. Thomas Casey added to the Casey collections thirty-five of her husband's note books, some of his correspondence and fourteen temperance reports. The note books supply us with the original material which was used in writing the "Old Time Records."

I will not take the time necessary to mention each separate contribution, they are all valuable in helping to make the collection more complete. I trust everyone will remember that the Society is always looking for material and will act as agent to help in the work.

MEETINGS.

We have held eight open meetings during our year. The programs presented were as follows:

Oct. 27, 1911, Prof. L. E. Horning, "England and Germany."

Nov. 27, 1911, Prof. W. L. Grant, "Boundary disputes between Canada and the United States."

Dec. 15, 1911, C. M. Warner, "Some Photographs in the Society's Collection."

Jan. 26, 1912, Prof. Herbert T. J. Coleman, "Training for Citizenship."

"Feb. 16, 1912, Walter S. Herrington, K. C., "Ancient and Modern Mexico."

Mar. 19, 1912, The program of Dec. 15, 1911, was repeated.

Mar. 29, 1912, Prof. J. L. Morrison, "The Romance of Geography."

Apr. 26, 1912, Dr. G. H. Needler, "Education in Germany and Ontario."

The attendance at all of these has been good. All of the professors who lectured here have spoken in the most complimentary manner of their Napanee audiences and the people, judging by the keen interest taken in each lecture, are awake to the great privilege they enjoy in being able to hear the University men. The same general plan for meetings will be followed during the year to come.

PUBLICATIONS.

The third volume of our "Paper and Records" was published in December, 1911. It contains several articles taken from the Casey Scrap books which refer more particularly to the discovery and first settlement of this district. There is an excellent picture of Mr. Thomas W. Casey in the front of the book. The Society is indebted to Mr. Herrington for the work he has done in editing and arranging in chronological order for publication, the material in the Casey Scrap books. Mr. Herrington has a short explanatory introduction to this volume. Volume IV, which contains a continuation of the articles from the same source, is now in the press. Several of the historical reviews have referred to our work in this department.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE ONTARIO HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

The Annual Meeting of the Ontario Historical Society was held at Brantford printing. I am hoping that some of our citizens will start an endowment fund, one held in trust in perpetuity, the income of which can at all times be used for the advancement of the work of the Society. Meantime we are glad to welcome any additions to our membership.

At the close of our year I thank you again for having elected me as your President for the past five years and I hope that the future will be a most prosperous for the Lennox and Addington Historical Society.

HOW TO WASTE MONEY, AND WHERE TO SAVE IT.

Under the above heading there appears a very interesting article in a recent number of "T. P.'s Weekly." The best way to waste money, it is to keep it in the pocket. Then, whenever one sees a thing which he fancies he would like he can buy it at once; otherwise, he may forget it, or, having had time to think it over, conclude that he can get along without it.

With the money in one's pocket we are always ready to receive the genius with

"The talk that will make a man think that he needs
The thing that he doesn't; the talk that breeds
So subtly the fear that he'll count
for naught
In the swim till that up-to-date frill
he's bought."

Some useful suggestions are also made as to how money may be saved, the chief of which is to be systematic in the expenditure of it, to make a careful estimate under such headings as household expenditures, food, rent, fuel, clothes, etc., not forgetting some, thing for "The Rainy Day." And for this purpose the writer would no doubt, had he been writing for the eyes of Canadians only, have recommended the Canadian Government Annuities System as giving the largest possible return with the best possible security. By investing a fraction of your income in this way you may, whether you be man or woman, insure an old age of freedom from want or dependence. Ask your Postmaster for literature on this subject, or write to the Superintendent of Annuities, Ottawa, who will tell all you wish to know about the system, and how you should proceed to make the provision suggested.

THE CONTROL OF INSECT PESTS IN CANADA.

The Division of Entomology of the Experimental Farms Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture,
 Ottawa, has recently issued a bulletin
 by Dr. C. Gordon Hewitt, Dominion Entomologist, on "The Control of Insect Pests in Canada."

An account is given of the history of the war against insect pests in Canada and of the manner in which insect pests have invaded the country as it has been gradually opened up and cultivated. The manner in which the Dominion and Provincial governments are endeavouring by legislation and other means to prevent the introduction of insect pests into Canada and the increase and spread of those pests already here is described. An interesting summary of the various lines of work undertaken and carried on by the Division of Entomology at Ottawa is given and the general public will no doubt be surprised at the many problems which come within the scope of the Entomologists who are called upon to deal with insects in their relations to all the varied activities of man; insects affecting farm crops, fruit
 growing, forest and shade trees; insects
 attacking man's possessions and infesting houses, attacking domestic animals
 and finally affecting the health of man.
 All insects, however, are not injurious
 and the work of the Entomologist includes bees and bee-keeping and the study of parasitic and other enemies
 which may be of assistance in obtaining control of insect pests.

Copies of this publication, Bulletin
 No. 9 (Second Series) Experimental Farms may be obtained from the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Montreal Live Stock.
 MONTREAL, May 13.—At the Montreal
 Stock Yards, West End Market, the recepts of live stock for the week ending
 May 11 were 1450 cattle, 250 sheep and lambs, 2250 hogs and 1700 calves. The supply for sale on the market this morning consisted of 400 cattle, 75 sheep and lambs, 1000 hogs and 250 calves.

A feature of the trade was the stronger
 feeling which developed in the market for cattle and prices scored a further advance
 of 25c per cwt., which was due to the very small run, the increasing scarcity
 of good finished stock through the country and the fact that drovers have been compelled to pay higher prices on account of the keen competition for stock between them and American buyers, as prices in the Chicago market are much higher than in the Canadian markets, owing to the scarcity of supplies. The steady advance in prices of late here and in the Toronto market has forced packers to mark up dressed beef 1/2c per lb., and the prospects are that they will go still higher in the near future, unless supplies of cattle increase. At the above advance noted the trade was fair, but the demand from butchers was principally for small lots to fill actual wants.
 A few full loads of good to choice steers

15c per cwt.
 The market for sheep and lambs is strong on account of limited supplies
 coming forward, for which the demand was good, and sales of mixed lots were made at $6 each. The demand for calves is very good on account of the high prices ruling for beef and all the stock
 offered met with a steady sale.

Save Babies' Lives. For Babies and Small Children. (Made in France.)
 Dr. Hennequin's Infant Tablets saved our little girl's life. Three doctors said she counot live. The Tablets cured her.—MR. E. R. McBRIDE, Napanee, Ont.
 My baby was so weak from sickness that he could hardly walk. We thought he would die. We could find nothing to help him. I was given a sample package of three Hennequin Tablets; we used them; I saw a change at once. We secured the Tablets and our baby improved every day, and is now a bright, fat, good natured boy; you could not believe he was the same child. They certainly cured my baby and saved his life. I believe them to be the best medicine ever sold for babies. Mothers if your babies are not well take my advice and try these Tablets.—MRS. JAMES RIDDELL, Barrydale, Ont.

CURIOSITY Prompted Many Women To Try PURITY FLOUR

THEY were curious to see exactly what results would be produced by flour consisting entirely of the high-grade portions of the best Western hard wheat.

They were curious to know more about a flour that contained none of the low-grade portions, which are found in every wheat berry, but which are separated and excluded from the high-grade in the process of milling PURITY FLOUR.

THEY were curious to know whether an ALL HIGH - GRADE hard wheat flour was really superior to a mixed hard and soft wheat flour.

They were curious to see and taste the kind of bread, buns, biscuits, cakes and pies PURITY FLOUR would make.

Curiosity prompts you to seek the knowledge they discovered. It's urging

you to try PURITY FLOUR.

REMINDER: On account of the extra strength and extra quality of PURITY FLOUR it is necessary, for best pastry-results, to add more shortening than you are accustomed to use with an ordinary flour. Add more water when making bread.

SHADOW ON AUSTRALIA.

Quite a Japanese Colony of Soldiers and Surveyors in Commonwealth.

There is a shadow of a mighty hand over Australia to-day. A grim, armored hand, a brown hand that is stretching its fingers out over the Pacific Ocean. . . . Nine hundred miles away from the coast of Queensland lies the French island of New Caledonia, a pretty little spot, a valuable little property. It is hardly more than two days' swift steaming away from the nearest point on the seaboard. At this moment it has at least two thousand and five hundred Japanese within its gates, men who profess to be miners in the employ of the Societe de Nickel, a wealthy corporation backed by Rothschild gold.

They were not always miners. Nearly every man-jack of them fought for Nippon in the Jap-Russo war. Many of them to-day wear the ulster military overcoats that were served out to them when they marched to beat the Bear. Numbers of them have a smattering of English. But the most important phase of their presence in the island only nine hundred miles away from coveted Australia is that they include among their numbers civil and electrical engineers, and skilled masons and carpenters and bridge-builders and telegraphists.

Within eighteen months New Caledonia will have a brown population of over six thousand capable, fighting Japanese, even judging the future only on figures that I know of to-day. That is the position in a nutshell. An army a fourth as large as Australia's less than a thousand miles from her back door. An army in possession, to all intents and purposes, of an island that has a fine strategical harbor, which could be made into a splendid naval station, and has coal fields sufficiently rich to provide an excellent coaling base for Japanese ships in the Pacific. The island is defended by 213 soldiers and eighteen artillerymen, with one antiquated gun; has no forts, no submarine mines; sometimes has one warship, either the Montcalm or the Kersaint; and has a total white population, free and ex-convict, of twenty thousand Kanakas, Loyalty Islanders, Javanese, Tonkinese, and Solomon Islanders—to say nothing of the little brown men from in and around Tokio. If these facts point in any direction at all, do they not point towards Australia.

We are frightened by tales of Japanese garrisons on every little island in the Pacific, beginning with Hawaii. From New Caledonia and the New Hebrides come reports of intense Japanese activity.

We are frightened by tales of Japs who practice flag-signalling from hill to hill, Japs who sail about in little boats ostensibly engaged in the occupation either of trepang or beche-de-mer gathering, and Japs who live in Noumea and in different parts of the main island who are periodically visited by others of their fellows from Thio.

We read of wireless stations established, of islands which serve as depots, of the purchasing of huge quantities of rice, of Japanese spies throughout the Commonwealth, and so forth and so on. The French inhabitants of New Caledonia fear and hate the Japanese. The way out of the difficulty, according to Mr. Shearston-May, is that the island should be ceded to Great Britain to avoid its purchase by Japan.

An Old-Time Beauty.

MOTHERHOOD SUGGES

Advice to Expectant

The experience of Mothering one to most women anticipates an epoch in their lives. A woman in a hundred is prepared to understand how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical advice at such times, but many a woman with an organ for the trial of strength, is over her system has received from which it is hard to recover right upon this continuous strain of caring for the child a distinct change in the mother.

There is nothing more cheerful than a happy and healthy mother and indeed child-birth under the best conditions need be no hazardous feat. The unexplainable with all the evidence of shattered and broken health resulting from a long and arduous preparation condition, and with in which to prepare, women in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and restorative of the female organism.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

If you want special advice, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lowell, Mass. You will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

LANDING AT RAKA

A Risky Feat and One That Tries the Nerves.

Rakahanga is a little coral island in the south sea, not very far from New Zealand. Few people ever land there and to judge from the account of Frank Burnett's "Through the Seas" of the difficulties the landing there none would attempt it a second time.

At Rakahanga the feeling is only by a miracle can a safe landing be made through what, by the imagination, is called the "lagoon." Imagined good entrance obstructed by coral rising to within a few feet of the surface of the water. This is built by that wonderful creature the coral polyp. Over it is an inconceivable fury huge oysters that travel with the speckled horses, lashing and churning into a milk white foam as deafening roar throwing up such a height that it may be seen from the lagoon.

Waste Paper in Paris.

Paris police give strict attention to the act against throwing waste papers and refuse upon the streets. An absent-minded old gentleman carelessly dropped a hundred franc note from his waistcoat pocket, whereupon a sharp eyed policeman requested the old gentleman to give his name and address or submit to arrest. But when the offender reached into the gutter and picked up the waste paper and opened it before the policeman's eyes he was let off with an apology and a profound bow.

Sentiment.

lay in the port of a city in northern Ohio jumped upon the bucket to ride out of the hold. The increased burden broke the hook by which the bucket was attached to the lifting cable. Man and bucket fell back into the hold, and the man received injuries from which he died. An administrator was appointed, who sued the hoisting company for damages. The lawyer employed for the plaintiff was in conversation one day with a friend, who remarked:

"I should think that the company, after an accident like that, would lose no time in installing stronger hoisting apparatus. It ought to be sufficient warning."

"Sufficient!" exclaimed the lawyer. "Why, man, that was only a drop in the bucket."—Philadelphia North American.

History on Coins.

The knowledge of coins and medals through the inscriptions and devices thereon is to an extent a history of the world from the date in which metals were applied to such uses, says the New Era. Events engraved upon these remain hidden in tombs or buried in the bosom of the earth, deposited there in ages long past by careful and miserly hands, only awaiting the research of the patient investigator to tell the story of their origin. Numismatic treasures are scanned as evidence of facts to substantiate statements on papyrus or stone, and dates are often supplied to define the border line between asserted tradition and positive history. Gibbon remarks, "If there were no other record of Hadrian his career would be found written upon the coins of his reign."

Nile Sudd as a Fuel.

One of the most curious phenomena of the Nile is the dense floating masses of vegetation known as sudd. In certain parts of the river it accumulates in block so dense and elastic that steamers cannot force their way through it, and dense enough to support cattle. To effect a passage for a vessel the sudd must be cut up, and floated down the river. Sir Samuel Baker, in 1870, had to cut through 50 miles of sudd on his way to Gondokoro. It has now been found that the sudd can be converted into a useful fuel, and a concession has been granted for working it on the first 92 miles of the Bahr el Jebel.

The Sporting Spirit.

An adverse criticism of the Rugby football team of the Aberystwyth College of Wales in a local paper brought severe punishment upon the head of the writer, says a London paper. At the close of lectures the students seized him and marched him to the castle ruins, where he was bound, and upon his head was poured the contents of a can of syrup. Bags of confetti were flung at him from all sides until he appeared like a human kaleidoscope. Thence he was borne on a truck through the streets of the town, which were filled with people.

Noah's Ark Dinner.

An amusing freak dinner has just been given in London by the Irish Literary Club and Association. The guests, forty in number, were all dressed to represent animals—lions, tigers, birds, and dogs being among the number. The dining-room was designed to represent a stable, and the meal took place by candle light. The waiters were dressed as cats.

the difficulty, according to Mr. Shearston-May, is that the island should be ceded to Great Britain to avoid its purchase by Japan.

An Old-Time Beauty.

Although she was a famous beauty Romney did not get much for painting her, and Walker, who engraved the portrait, got less. She died at Old Palace Yard 90 years ago, and her name was Mrs. Bankes, widow of Hy. Bankes, M.P. for Corfe Castle. As Frances Woodley, daughter of the governor of the Leeward Isles, she had been the toast of the town in her heyday, and during the week at Christie's there was another little celebration in her honor, as a first-state proof of Walker's mezzotint aforesaid brought as much as $2,900. In the famous Blyth sale, 1901, a similar example realized only $750. Two years ago one reached $1,950. One of "no state," that is to say an ordinary print, fetched $300 in 1905. Yet even ordinary prints are increasing in value. From the East-End came a Bartolozzi bistre print of Laurence's "Miss Farren," the famous "Wicked Earl," Derby's "Nimminy Pimminy." A full-color proof of Bartolozzi's version of this has fetched $2,500.

English Tobacco.

The cultivation of tobacco plants in Great Britain for ornamental purposes has been successfully undertaken by gardeners for some years, but it is only recently that attempts on any appreciable scale, have been made to cultivate tobacco as a commercial crop. Visitors to the recent Royal Horticultural Society's Exhibition had an opportunity of seeing cured leaves of the first commercial tobacco ever grown in England. These were shown by special permission of the customs authorities by Maj. G. F. Whitmore, Methwold, Norfolk. The plants, "Country Life" states, had been grown on rough peat land which hitherto has refused to grow anything of value except poor crops of lucerne. In addition to the whole leaves, samples of cut tobacco of various grades and ready for smoking were shown.

Twenty Cents a Day.

Twelve hours' pit work for twenty cents! That was the daily lot of Mr. W. A. Harvey, M.P. for North-West Derby and secretary of the Derbyshire Miners' Association. As a lad of ten he had to be up and about in the early morning, his day's work at the pit commencing at 6 a.m. Then in the evening, when the clock had gone round, came the weary trudge home in the darkness. It was in order to help his widowed mother that Mr. Harvey had to go to work so early in life. He educated himself in his spare time, and quite early identified himself with the movement for the combination that eventually blossomed into the Derbyshire Miners' Association.

His boat—a long, low, flat affair, built much like a hammanned usually by six paddles the steersman—is broad very verge of the boiling ca there it is held till the opportunity arrives. Since that does not occur for five or ten the passenger has plenty to reflect upon his misdeeds, the sublime scene and to w in the world that fearful water is to be crossed.

The delay does not tend to his nerves, but if he is obliged will notice that about every six minutes three giant quick succession roll majestically. When the last of the three and the chasm has been filled paddlers give a frightful yell the unsuspecting passenger most to death, dig in their paddles to shoot the boat forward like from a bow.

Before the backwash catches the chasm the boat is again passenger has hardly time how it is done before they have sprung to the reef and the boat clear of the next ally a small one.

ROME'S COLISEUM

Majestic Even In Its Ruins Is the Historic Old Edifice.

ITS BLOOD SATURATED ARENA

On the Occasion of Its Inauguration
Five Thousand Wild Animals and Ten Thousand Captives Were Slain In an Orgy That Lasted a Hundred Days.

Second only to the Acropolis at Athens in interest to the antiquarian and historian in his study of ruins of Europe is the Coliseum at Rome. This historic edifice was erected during the reigns of Vespasian and Titus and in honor of the latter. It is said that 60-000 Jews were engaged in its erection for ten years.

It was a feudal fortress for a long time and finally a quarry from which were built churches and palaces until
by its consecration as holy ground on account of the number of martyrs supposed to have been immolated there,
further ravages were stopped.

It is said to have given seats to 87-
000 spectators and was inaugurated A.
D. 80, the same year in which Titus died, on which occasion 5,000 wild animals and 10,000 captives were slain.
The inauguration lasted 100 days. An ecclesiastical tradition makes the architect to have been a Christian, one Gaudentius, afterward a martyr.

This structure was originally called the Amphitheatrum Flavium, but since the time of Bebe it has been known as the Coliseum, probably given it because of its enormous size.

The Roman Coliseum became the spot where prince and people met together to witness those sanguinary exhibitions the degrading effect of which
on the Roman character can hardly be overestimated. The circumference of the building is 1,641 feet, the height of the outer wall is 157, the length of the arena 278 feet and its width 177. It covers an area of six acres.

It is only by ascending to the upper terrace that the enormous size of the Coliseum is fully seen, and by moonlight the effect of size and massiveness is much increased. The ruins south of the Coliseum are supposed to have been the Vivarium, in which were kept the wild beasts for the combats.

As a general description of the building the following passage of Gibbon is said to be perfect: "The outside of the edifice was incrustured with marble and decorated with statues. The slopes of the vast concave which formed the inside were filled and surrounded with sixty or eighty rows of seats, of marble likewise, covered with cushions
and capable of receiving with ease
about 80,000 spectators. Sixty-four 'vomitories' (for by that name the doors were very aptly distinguished) poured forth the immense multitude, and the entrances, passages and staircases
were contrived with such exquisite skill that each person, whether of the senatorial, the equestrian or the plebeian order, arrived at his destined place without trouble or confusion.
Nothing was omitted which in any re-

A TRUE FRIEND.

A BOOK I find a constant friend
That manners does not lack,
For, though perhaps we disagree,
It never sasses back.
It doesn't rant and saw the air
Or lay the law down flat,
But quietly it states its case
And lets it go at that.

Weary with the cares of life
And heartsick with the strife,
I sit down with a book and take
A taste of quiet life.
Suppose that from its friendly page
My thoughts should take the train
To some unnamed and distant clime,
The book does not complain.

Neglected though it lies around
For months and maybe years,
The same old friend when opened up
It instantly appears.
It does not pout or make a fuss
And say it will not play,
But cheerfully it comes to meet
My manner grave or gay.

It offers me the best advice
The sages ever penned;
It shows me how to live my life

THE SECRET.

KEEPING at it brings success.
That's the secret, but I guess
That it matters quite a lot,
While you keep the matter hot,
What it is, my son, that you
Stick to like a hunk of glue—
What it is you pick and choose
Never from your mind to lose.

If you stick both night and day,
To a scheme that doesn't pay,
Hanging on with all your skill
Though the way is all uphill,
Never letting grow the moss
While you figure up the loss—
You will soon be busted flat
Sticking to a thing like that.

If you stick serenely to Any cause that is not true,
Caring not to list to those
Who its error might disclose,
Being stubborn just to prove
That you cannot forward move,
You will never win, I fear,
Though consistent year by year.

Pick a project that will pay,
Then unwearied by it stay.

skill that each person, whether the senatorial, the equestrian or the plebeian order, arrived at his destined place without trouble or confusion. Nothing was omitted which in any respect could be subservient to the convenience and pleasure of the spectators. They were protected from the sun and rain by an ample canopy, occasionally drawn over their heads. The air was continually refreshed by the playing of fountains and profusely impregnated by the grateful scent of aromatics.

"In the center of the edifice the arena was strewn with the finest sand and successively assumed the most different forms. At one moment it seemed to rise out of the earth like the garden of the Hesperides, and was afterward broken into the rocks and caverns of Thrice. The subterranean pipes conveyed an inexhaustible supply of water, and what had just before appeared a level plain might be suddenly converted into a wide lake, covered with armed vessels and replenished with the monsters of the deep.

"In the decoration of these scenes the Roman emperors displayed their wealth and liberality, and we read on various occasions that the whole furniture of the amphitheater consisted either of silver or of gold or of amber.

"The poet who describes the game of Carinus in the character of a shepherd attracted to the capitol by the fame of their magnificence affirms that the nets designed as a defense against the wild beasts were of gold wire, that the por- ticoes were gilded and that the 'belt' or circle which divided the several ranks of spectators from each other was studded with a precious mosaic of beautiful stones."

In ancient times there was hardly a town in the Roman empire which had not an amphitheater large enough to contain vast multitudes of spectators, and as specimens of architecture the amphitheaters were more remarkable for the mechanical skill and admirable adaptation to their purpose displayed in them than for any beauty of shape or decoration.—Chicago News.

The Artistic Temperament.
Millet, the painter of "The Angelus," had a standing agreement with a firm of art dealers who took all his work in exchange for regular payments of £40 a month. When he was told that they could sell a single picture for as much as £2,000 he said:
"That is their affair. As long as I have all I need and can paint what I like and as I like it I do not mind what they get for my pictures."—London Graphic.

Interested Visitors.

"Don't you find it very lonesome in the city? You didn't know a soul when you went there, and city folks are not like villagers. They are not much on the dropping in, I have heard."

"No, indeed; we have many callers."
"What, so soon?"
"Well, you see we bought our furniture and fixings from about a dozen different installment houses."

The Reason.

"They say that contentment is better than great riches. I wonder who knows about it?"
"Lots of people."
"How is that?"

E. V. Fisher, a Well-Known Birdman, and Victor Lo an American Mining Man Pitched Out of Machine of 150 Feet—Mason Is Wreckage and Body Is

London, May 14.—Victor Lo, an American identified as a time private secretary to the Secretary of War, Gen. Fisher, and to his successor, was killed yesterday while flight at Brooklands with an aviator, E. V. Fisher. Fisher killed, by being pitched machine when at a height of 150 feet.

Fisher was about to give a demonstration and picked Mr. Lo as a passenger from among the crowd. They circled the track and eyewitnesses say, the machine was a monoplane, made of wood. It wavered a moment and fell straight to the earth. It stopped in the air threw Fisher long from his seat. Mason, beneath the wreckage, was fire, and he was badly hurt being extricated. Physicians said both men died almost

It is surmised that some of the engine of the plane, which caused the crash, the weather conditions were. The bodies were removed to await an inquest. Probably will be held tomorrow.

Fisher was regarded as an aviator. He had met with accidents, one in October which he was rendered unconscious and his passenger painful. On another occasion, after an accident, Fisher made a one arm strapped to his side.

Victor Louis Mason resided in New Jersey. He was born in 1870. His wife was Comstock Simons of Wash. D.C. was associated with Gen. A. C. McLean from 1899 to 1902.

Thomas Sopwith was around the grounds with a plane at the time and witnessed the accident. He flew in the direction of the wreckage and alighted beside it. The two men attempted to beat down the wreckage.

In the meantime the crowd to the spot and extinguishers applied, but when the fire was quenched the machine was destroyed.

Fisher's body was found away, his neck having been broken. Among the spectators were the owner of the monoplane, Commander Samson, who made a hydro-aeroplane flight at Brooklands last week.

According to newspaper reports, Mason was a friend of C. Samson. The latter accompanied him to the grounds and, it is reported, was in the flight with him.

Sealskin Sacques Will Be Higher.

St. John's, Nfld., May 14.—Yesterday marked the close of one of the most unsatisfactory sealing seasons that Newfoundland has known in many years. Twenty steamers engaged in the fishing industry reported a total catch of 175,123 seals, valued at $329,104. This is hardly more than half the number taken last year when the steamers reported 304,291 seals, valued at $493,635.

The falling off this year is due in a large measure to abnormal ice conditions which have prevailed. There were no serious accidents to the fleet this year, in contrast with past years.

Italian Workman Killed.

Toronto, May 14.—Carol Pengally, an Italian laborer, was instantly killed yesterday morning while at work on the roof of the transformer station at the foot of Atlantic avenue. He came into contact with the high tension wires crossing the roof of the building. There was no one working with him at the time, it is not known exactly how the accident occurred. These wires carry upwards of 30,000 volts, and it is claimed that sometimes the high current will jump a short distance.

LOTS OF FIGHT YET.

Gen. Orozco Says Rebels Are Still In the Ring.

Jimenez, Mexico, May 14.—(At Gen.
Orozco's Headquarters.)—Conceding
his defeat in the battle before Cone-jos, Gen. Pascual Orozco last night was by no means dispirited.

"The revolution has just begun,"
he said, "and we are confident that we will ultimately overthrow Madero
for a just revolution will always triumph."

Gen. Orozco would not say how many men he had lost, but admitted that he had not heard from Gen.
Campa and Gen. Artugumedo, whom he sent around to the west of Conejos
with 2,500 men to flank the federales.

Gen. Tellez of the federal army is believed to have engaged them and cut off their retreat.

Gen. Orozco was at a loss to understand rumors in circulation yesterday
that he had been killed.

"Madero will find me very much alive before many days," said Orozco.
Only skirmishing occurred yesterday.
The rebels chiefly occupied themselves in recovering from Sunday's fight.

Gen. Enrile Will Recover.

Chihuahua, Mex., May 14.—The condition of Gonzalo C. Enrile, financial agent of Orozco, who was murderously assaulted here early yesterday, was last night unchanged. Enrile's four wounds, inflicted by knife
and pistol, are not regarded as fatal.
The identity of the assassins is unknown.

Enrile by his activity in the revolution during the last two months has made many political enemies. To him is attributed the financing of the present revolution on behalf of Bernardo
Reyes Limantour, former Governor
Terrazas and others once identified with the Diaz regime. Enrile opposed Vasquez Gomez and influenced Orozco to denounce him and it is believed Gomez supporters were behind the plot to assassinate him.

TRIAL IS POSTPONED.

Charles Gibson Will Not Come Up
Until the Fall.

Toronto, May 14.—After considering the many intricate points of the murder of Joseph Rosenthal and the attempted murder of Eli Dunkelmann yesterday, Mr. Justice Middleton granted the request of Aubrey Bond,
counsel for Charles Gibson, to traverse the hearing of the case until next fall. Gibson is charged with the murder of Joseph Rosenthal.

Gibson filed an affidavit stating that Eli Dunkelmann lied at the inquest,
when he said that Gibson was the only man who accompanied him and Dunkelmann to the scene of the murder. He alleges that he introduced
two former employees of the hydro,
known as "Wilson" and "Ali" to the two Jews, and left them on the Strachan avenue bridge.

Mr. Bond said he had been in communication with a witness who would be prepared to testify that he saw the two Jews talking to two other men on this bridge. Gibson holds that he would have taken steps to locate these two men sooner had he thought that the evidence of Dunkelmann would not exonerate him.

The prisoner is without funds, but
some citizens are contributing money for his defence. Mr. Justice Middleton was in favor of allowing only a few weeks' stay in proceedings, but Mr. Bond advised the court that he would have to withdraw from the case
if such a stipulation were made.

TO BRING MILLENNIUM

That Is Roosevelt's Undertaking, Says Taft.

In First Day of Final Campaign In Ohio the President of the U. S.
Makes a Remarkable Attack on His Opponent For the Republican Nomination—Roosevelt Believes He Is the Only Man Big Enough.

Steubenville, O., May 14.—President Taft's first day of his final campaign swing through Ohio, which came to an end with a speech here
last night, was marked by the most pronounced verbal assaults upon Col.
Theodore Roosevelt to which Mr.
Taft has so far given utterances.

Speeches that were filled with indignant attack, that bubbled over
with uncomplimentary adjectives, Mr.
Taft discharged at his predecessor in the White House.

"He says the reason the American people are going to elect him is because he is necessary for the job. That is the description he gives. Well, I hope the American people will not think that he is necessary for the job.
I want to call your attention to what the job is which he proposes. It is the millennium that he is going to bring about when he gets into office. All bosses are going to disappear; politicians are going to be fewer and he is going to have a finger in every community, in every state, in every county and everything is going to heaven."

"If that be true the millennium is coming, and that is the job he is to do. It is going to take longer than four years. I beg of you to ask him when he comes here whether he would take a fourth term, ask him whether he is going to take a fifth term, and
why he should not continue in office
during his life?"

SHE FAINTED WITH THE AGONY

"Fruit-a-lives" Cured Her Kidneys

Miss MAGGIE JANNACK

MOUNTAIN, ONT., DEC. 14th. 1910

"I desire to let the world know the great debt I owe 'Fruit-a-lives' which saved my life when I had given up hope
of ever being well again.

For six years, I suffered from dreadful Kidney Disease. My legs and lower part of my body were fearfully swollen.
The pain in my side and legs would be so bad that I would faint with the agony.

Five different doctors attended me
and all said it was Kidney Disease and gave me no hope of getting well.

A kind neighbor visited me and mentioned the case of Mrs. Fenwick who had been cured of a sickness like mine. I took 'Fruit-a-lives' and in a short time, I began to feel better—the swelling went down—the pains were easier—and soon I was well.

I have gained over 30 pounds since taking 'Fruit-a-lives'—and my friends
look upon my recovery as a miracle."

More clothes are rubbed out than worn out. GOLD DUST saves rubbing and saves your clothes

Do not use Soap, Naphtha, Borax, Soda, Ammonia or Kerosene with GOLD DUST.

GOLD DUST has all desirable cleansing qualities in a perfectly harmless and lasting form. The GOLD DUST TWINS need no outside help.

GOLD DUST lathers instantly in hot or cold, hard or soft water—converts itself instantly into thick, vigorous suds that remove grease, grime and settled stains and clear out germs and impurities. It leaves only cleanliness and wholesomeness in their wake.

GOLD DUST spares you and protects your clothes from washboard wear.

Save yourself long hours of weary, dreary toil, and double the life of your clothes by buying and trying a package of GOLD DUST next wash-day.

GOLD DUST is sold in 50 size and large pack- ages. The large package offers greater economy.

Lecture.

Tuesday evening, May 21st, in the Town Hall, at 8 p. m., Napanee is offered a rare treat in a lecture by Mrs. W. G. Macnaughton, of Montreal, on "The Blue Bird" (the pursuit of happiness) Maeterlinck's masterpiece drama, which contains in a beautiful allegorical form the great materialist philosopher's views of life. No other drama in modern times has attracted such wide audiences of both old and young, because it contains so happily its story of child life and its deeper philosophy of life. A short musical programme will be given by Mrs. Franklyn VanLuven, Miss VanLuven, Miss Grieve, Mrs. Cameron Wilson and ladies chorus under the auspices of the musical committee of St. Andrew's church. Admission 25c.

I. O. D. E.

A most enjoyable tea was given at the residence of the Rev. A. MacDonald, to the United Empire Loyalist Chapter, I.O.D.E., by Mrs. MacDonald and Mrs. Eakins, on Tuesday last, to commemorate Empire and Victoria Days, that date being more convenient for the hostesses than the 23rd or 24th inst. Mrs. Madden, First Vice-Regent, gave an entertaining and thoughtful paper, her subject being "The Empire" and "Queen Victoria," in which all were interested. Standing under a rare old portrait of her late Majesty, taken in her early widowhood—of which very few copies are extant—Mrs. Gibson read, with much feeling and expression, Tennyson's beautiful "Dedication to the Queen." An interesting letter was read by Miss Heck from a lady in England, telling of her visit to Kennington Palace, where Queen Victoria's childhood was passed; her description of the rooms occupied by the little Princess, and of her quaint garments and simple toys, still shown there, made the royal child seem very human and near to us. Mrs. U. M. Wilson brought the program to a close by singing a pretty Scotch song, entitled "My Ain Folk." She was accompanied by Mrs. Fred L. Hooper. At it was also the occasion of a special business meeting which took up a great portion of the afternoon, the program was necessarily curtailed. The Union Jack was in evidence all through the house and the tea table was especially gay with tiny numerous flags. The silver collection was donated to the Titanic Fund for the widows and orphans of the crew of the unfortunate ship, which is being helped by the I.O.D.E. chapters throughout the country.

Rev. Sterin Tighe, of Carleton Place, formerly of Newburgh and later stationed at Amherst Island, died on Friday last at his home at Carleton Place. The late Mr. Tighe, who was about seventy-nine years of age, was a man of considerable scholarship and ability, a good speaker and a very successful parish priest, winning many over to the Church of England, by his careful instruction. During his ministry in Canada, almost entirely in the dioceses of Ontario and Ottawa, he was respected and loved by his parishioners, and his advice and guidance greatly valued in synod. The late Mr. Tighe retired in 1905, and resided in Kingston for some time, later moving to Carleton Place.

Welland, Ont., May 12—Rev. D. Scott Houck, pastor of the Milton Methodist church, died here this morning at the residence of his brother-in-law, Mr. C. H. Reilly. Preaching here nine weeks ago he explained to the congregation that he had been suddenly seized with a very severe headache. This grew in intensity, and in a few days paralysis set in, accompanied by unconscious. Specialists from Toronto and Boston were called on and discovered a growth on the brain. An operation was performed, but was unsuccessful, although for the past three weeks the patient appeared to be holding his own. Early Sunday morning he began to sink rapidly and died at ten o'clock. Mr. Houck was a graduate of Victoria University, and had charge of the Welland church for some time prior to his ordination. On being ordained he entered the Bay of Quinte conference of which he was afterwards secretary for many years as well as serving as chairman of the Picton district. He held charges at Tweed, Picton, Bloomfield and Wellington, Milton being his first charge in the Hamilton Conference. He leaves a widow but no children.

The Musical Event of the Season.

A concert of more than ordinary interest was given in the Town Hall on Thursday evening of last week, by Mr. Francis Fischer Powers and his pupils. A fine audience was present and gave hearty applause and best of attention to every number on the big programme. The main feature was the Ladies' Choral Club, of which the following ladies took part: Mrs. F. E. VanLuven, Mrs. J. G. Daly, Mrs. C. I. Mabee, Mrs. D. C. McNaughton, Mrs. W. J. Jewell, Mrs. U. M. Wilson, Mrs. H. Kelly, Mrs. N. J. Sills, Mrs. W. B. Dunn, Misses Herring, H. and E. VanLuven, A. and M. Paul, B. and M. Baughan, Bowen, Craig, F. and L. Hall, Greene, Herrington, Wood, Saul.

The choruses were well done, each one receiving hearty applause. The selected chorus of eight voices did fine work also in the "Madrigal." In the single trios by the Misses Paul and Mr. Powers, the "Spring song" was fine and bright. The trios, "Waves of the sea" and "Mariners" by Mrs. VanLuven, Mr. Atwood and Mr. Powers, were sung with splendid effect and blend of voices. The duet by Miss Gallagher and Mr. Atwood, "It was a lover and his lass," must not be forgotten among other good things. The soloists were Mrs. Franklyn VanLuven, Miss Alice Paul, Miss Myrtle Gallagher, Mr. Beecroft, Mr. Orr, Mr. Atwood. Mrs. VanLuven sang "Through the streets," Puccini; "Moonlight" by Haile; "Morning Hymn," Henschel; "Ghosts" by Lang, with splendid effect, showing a fine voice, smooth and even throughout, with a finely controlled soft tone as well as great power of tone at her command where occasion requires but noticeable, particularly in the sweetness and good quality of the upper notes. Miss Paul in her songs "Lovely Liszt" and "Waltz Song" by Gounod sang sweetly and well. She has a voice of good compass and shows careful training and steady progress and should feel gratified at her success. Miss Gallagher has not been heard here before but certainly has a sweet voice and sang her songs, "Spring" by Woodman, "Sleep little one" by Beignami, and "Weep not for the roses," with a sweetness and daintiness quite in keeping with her own appearance. Mr. Beecroft with his bass voice and scholarly appearance left a good impression on his audience. "She alone," Gounod, "The Wanderer," Schubert, "The Vulcan's Song," Gounod, "Slumber Song," Bond, "Son of Mine," Wallace, "I long for you," Hawley, were all fine songs, sung in a fine way. Mr. Atwood in his group of songs by Homer was also splendid, doing excellent work with his fine tenor voice. Mr. Orr sang two groups of songs in good voice. "Little Pigeon" and "Danny Deever" were some of his most effective ones. It would have been a pleasure indeed if Mr. Powers had consented to sing on this programme but the audience had to be content with hearing him sing only in the trios and quartettes. This concert has certainly demonstrated to the people of Napanee what wonderful things Mr. Powers can do with his pupils in a vocal way and concerts of this kind will surely be always welcome to the music lovers of the town. Miss Helen VanLuven and Mr. Harold Albery played the accompaniments and added much to the success of the singers.

GRAHAM CO.'S., Napanee, Ont.

Ottawa, May 13.—The following regarding Joseph Haycock, of Kingston,
 appears in this morning's Citizen :

"Joseph Haycock informed his friends on Saturday that he was no longer in the employment of the government, notice having been given him that his services had been dispensed with. Mr. Haycock was appointed some years ago as inspector of binder twine, the appointment being made by Sir Richard Cartwright,
 who, as minister of trade and commerce, made more than one appointment which taxed his eloquence and ingenuity to defend in parliament. It appears that upon assuming official duties, Mr. Haycock forgot to put away politics. Instead, he took quite an active part in furthering the interests of his party, in subsequent campaigns, and "Joe" Haycock was no slouch on the platform either. Relieved of his duties as inspector of binder twine, he is free to return to his congenial occupation as spellbinder."

Shortly after the election of September 21st last, Hon. Geo. E. Foster wrote Mr. Haycock saying that charges had been made that he had acted in a partizan manner while he held a government office. Mr. Hay-cock replied, thanking Mr. Foster for the opportunity he had given him of replying to the charges, which he denied. He declared that the only part he had taken during any election campaign since he was appointed to office was to appear on a platform at Napanee, in order to refute some statements made by Uriah Wilson, ex-M.
 P., which were of a personal nature.
 Outside of this he had done nothing.

Mr. Haycock's friends knew all along that he would be relieved of his office, as he had always been a thorn in the flesh of the conservatives. The only surprise has been that he did not receive notice sooner, but it is said
 that there were so many hungry politicians after his "job" that the government was unable to make a move. Mr. Haycock, being "on easy street," will not worry over being deprived of the $2,000 position he held.
 Mr. Haycock says, "Yes, they cut off
 my head; but they did not keep it.
 He is still doing business and will continue. I am not asking sympathy from anybody."
